

BOB AMMON FOR CAPT. FLOOD

TRIAL FOR BIG SWINDLE

ACCUSED BY GEN. GREENE

District Attorney Confident He Has a “Get-to-Jail-Quick” Game for Man Whom 520-Per-Cent. Miller Will Accuse.

SLOW WORK GETTING JURY.

Miller in Court Ready to Testify Against the Man Who, He Alleges, Profited by Game and Then Betrayed Him to Police Reaping the Profits Himself.

Such an array of counsel has seldom been seen in a criminal court as was gathered in Part II. of General Sessions to-day to defend Robert A. Ammon, accused of having received $100,000 from William F. Miller, figurehead of the defunct 520 per cent. Franklin Syndicate swindle.

Ammon heretofore, whenever arrested in connection with get-rich-quick concerns, has managed just to reach the jail doors, but no further. This time, however, the District Attorney believes he has a strong case against the promoter, lawyer and broker, who has spent most of his life doing queer financial stunts.

Ammon's counsel included Arthur C. Palmer, Fred House, Louis J. Morrison, William M. Mullen, Rollin C. Wooster and a half dozen young men employed in the offices of the various lawyers.

The principal witness against Ammon is Miller, the 520 per cent. man, who when called to the stand, will tell all about the big swindle in which the victims numbered 1,700 and the actual profits were $1,000,000, all made in nine months.

Ammon Arrived Early.

“Col. Bob,” as he is familiarly termed, went into Judge Newburger's court early. He wore a dark blue serge suit. Going behind the railing he talked in a low tone with Fred House, whose partner he once was. Two hundred men, 100 for to-day and 100 for to-morrow, were summoned to court.

Alfred R. Goslin was not in court when Ammon arrived. The colonel kept his eye on the dock anxiously watching for his arch enemy, the man he was once associated with in get-rich-quick concerns, but who has since turned, and for revenge persuaded Miller to tell all about his connection with the Franklin syndicate.

Miller believes that Ammon while his counsel deceived him from Canada and delivered him to the Brooklyn police, Miller says that Ammon wrote him that everything had been fixed with District Attorney Clark in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Ammon at Commencement.

The prosecution was represented by Assistant District Attorneys Nott and Hart.

Mrs. Ammon, wife of the defendant, was not in court to-day. She was attending a school commencement in which her son was taking part.

“He betrayed me,” Miller said to-day, “and now it is my turn. I will tell all about the Franklin Syndicate.”

The real story of the Franklin Syndicate can only be told by Miller. He was the tool, but he knew about the inside workings of the 520 per cent. game.

PALL OF SMOKE; ENVELOPS CITY; LINERS TED UP.

Clouds from the Forest Fires in Maine, Long Island, Connecticut and the Adirondacks So Dense that the Entire Eastern Section of the Country Is Darkened.

INCOMING SHIPS ARE ALL DETAINED AT QUARANTINE.

From Boston, Newport and Other Places Come Reports of Flood, Dense Clouds of Smoke and Showers of Ashes—Fourteen Miles of Railway Destroyed in Maine.

All New York has been wrapped in such a pall of smoke to-day as has never been seen here before. The great clouds were swept over the city from the blazing pine forests of the Adirondacks and New England. When Gotham awoke this morning it was greeted by a dull, leaden sky, through which the sun's rays could not penetrate.

As the day advanced the stifling clouds grew in density, and thousands of people found themselves choking and coughing from the pungent smoke.

The thick clouds were wafted into every building in the city and everywhere was the stifling odor of burning wood. By 3 o'clock this afternoon the smoky pall had settled down over the city and harbor in such density that the tops of tall buildings were obscured, and not a ray of the sun could break through the gray edifice.

On the rivers all traffic was seriously retarded. Fog signals were kept going all day long, and boats were compelled to feel their way along with the greatest care to avoid collisions.

Several transatlantic and coastwise steamships arrived at Quarantine during the day, but did not continue up the bay, because of the haze. One of them was the Holandia.

In the Holland House, the Waldorf, the Hoffman House and other big hotels, where every precaution is taken day and night for the comfort and safety of patrons, bellboys and porters searched every corner of the building to make sure that there was no danger.

When the sun came up it looked for all the world like a stage property moon in a night scene. The sun looked like a little disk perhaps six inches in diameter, as it glowed dimly through the haze. The whole atmosphere had a pink-gray appearance and at times big buildings half a mile away were screened from view.

The first idea of every one was that there would be rain, and about half New York went to business carrying its umbrellas. All soon saw that there was little chance for rain, and the peculiar conditions formed the chief subject for conversation on "L" trains and surface cars.

An explanation of the smoke is given in dispatches from the Adirondack region of this State and from up New England, where forest fires have been raging for some time. This is also Weather Forecaster Emery's explanation of the peculiar atmospheric condition.
